WHAT IS THIS "DRESS-UP" CAMPAIGN, ANYHOW?

A lot of men seem to have the impression that "Dress-Up" is some kind of an excuse for a sale. Let us explain.

The Dress Up Campaign is a direct appeal to clothes consciousness. It is an honest endeavor to impress you men with the direct benefits brought about by a neat appearance.

We needn't go into details about it. You know that when you go after a New Job, or when you are out to land a Big Order, or when you Get Married, you DRESS UP.

DressUp!

—it doesn't mean making a snob of yourself. Getting down to plain talk about it a snob usually is overdressed, and over-dressing is as much of a handicap as unkempt apparel is.

Appreciate your clothes—the comfort they bring—the self-respect you feel when you are dressed right—the deference you command when you are well groomed.

Think about the importance of clothing and join us in the Nation Wide Dress Up Movement, September 30 to October 14th.

WHO PAYS THE FREIGHT?

The supplementary revenue law signed by the president as congress adjourned is expected to raise $200,000,000 by way of taxation, various war munitions made on the north and west being taxed, and cotton, large quantities of which are being used in the manufacture of munitions, having been struck from the list of taxable merchandise. It has cost up to date over $100,000,000 to "get" Villa, and the expenses to the federal government to keep the troops along the border are now running at the rate of $15,000,000 to $20,000,000 a month. It is calculated that the total expense caused by going after Villa and capturing him will be $200,000,000, or just about the amount estimated to be received from the new revenue law. In addition to this the earning power of thousands of men drafted into the service, has been reduced to $15 a month. And Wilson's erstwhile buddy, Pancho Villa, is still shooting up our troops. The Mexican policy of President Wilson has furnished the country with a continuous vaudeville performance, and the end is not yet. The president is slow to discover that self-government is vital to the life of a republican form of government. Mexico is totally deficient in this respect. The effort to capture Villa is on a par with the "Great War" in the fact that the people are taxed to gratify the theories of a theoretical president.

THE AFTERMATH.

The organizer of the car men's union of New York City, William B. Fitzgerald, received a letter from the public service commission containing the following question: "How does it happen, then, that with an agreement to arbitrate which you regarded as binding, the strike went as well as it did in the Interborough and New York railways situation, that, really as you were on the 24th of September to submit the matter to public investigation and inquiry and decision, on the 26th of September a strike takes place on both lines without any formal request of the commission for an investigation of the facts on your part?" The example set by the Brotherhood at Washington, backed by Woodrow Wilson, and holding a stop-work on congress, doubtless had a good deal of weight with the New York organizer in formulating his decision to call the strike at once. That President Wilson's attitude on the threatened railway strike would be far-reaching in results, was to be expected, and the New York situation is in evidence. The agitator and walking delegate have come into their own and they are making the most of the situation.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT.

Much discussion is going on these days about what will happen to American industries after the war. It is interesting to note what might be happening to them now but for the fact that many plants formerly engaged in the industries, have been transformed into munition factories. In the meantime England has taken advantage of our democratic free trade policy, and in spite of her great handicap is shipping more goods to America than ever before, as will be seen by the following statistics: "During the first eight months of the calendar year 1914 Great Britain was at peace, and her total exports for that period were in the neighborhood of $1,500,000,000. During the first eight months of 1915 Great Britain was engaged in the most gigantic struggle in her history, and was bearing a heavy burden of financing her allies. Many of her factories were engaged in the manufacture of war munitions, and thousands of her workmen were on the firing line, their places in the mills being taken by women. Nevertheless, the total exports of Great Britain during this eight months period were valued at nearly $2,000,000,000. Not much evidence of industrial prostration there, despite the declaration of our free trade democratic friends.

"Exports during the month of August, 1916, increased about $75,000,000 over 1915, the chief increase being in manufactured articles, particularly textiles, increasing $15,000,000, and iron and steel manufactures $12,500,000. Exports of cotton goods to the United States for last August to

G. O. P. LEADERS DENY FAIRBANKS AND HUGHES ARE AT ODDS ON MEXICO POLICY

Charles E. Hughes and Charles W. Fairbanks photographed together on former's mid-west tour.

An argument has arisen between Republican and Democratic leaders as to whether Hughes and Fairbanks are at odds on the president's Mexican policy. Chairman Vance McCormick of the Democratic national committee says that Fairbanks has approved of Wilson's course in Mexico. This is denied by Chairman Willcox of the G. O. P.

GOVERNOR TO CALL EXTRA SESSION SOON

Legislature Will Take Action to Insure Members of State Militia Right to Vote.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 28.—That Governor E. L. Dillingham is to call a special session of the legislature to make provision whereby the Wisconsin soldier boys at the Mexican border in the federal service will be enabled to cast their ballots Nov. 7 is practically settled and a proclamation to that end will be issued as soon as some minor details are arranged.

It is agreed by the attorneys that there is no legal barrier to the calling of the special session. The statute provides that when a special session of the legislature is to be convened and there are vacancies in the membership of the senate or assembly, special elections shall be held to fill such vacancies "if possible."

That in the present situation an "extraordinary occasion" exists is not questioned, that it is not possible to secure the desired legislation in time for it to be effective if the process of holding special elections to fill legislative vacancies is to be gone through with is evident.

A constitutional provision directs that when a special session is convened no business shall be transacted except such as is designated in the call. Therefore, it is desirable that the legislature shall consider any other subject, when it meets in special session, than the one which creates the extraordinary occasion, such subject shall be specifically designated in the executive proclamation.

May Consider Other Subjects. Whatever other subjects than the one which prompts the calling of the forthcoming session, Governor Dillingham may include in the call when he makes it is not known except, perhaps, that it will be proposed to enact legislation which will permit the revisor of the statutes to have bills drawn and printed in preparation for the convening of the regular session in January, 1917. It is pointed out that if these bills could be previously printed much time would be saved to the regular session.

Call Within a Week. Madison, Sept. 28.—While Governor Philipps is at the Beaver Dam fair, Lawrence Whitte, secretary to the executive, said this afternoon the governor would call a special session of the legislature within the next week or ten days. He said the governor satisfied it was necessary to fill vacancies that have occurred since the last election.

City's Glory Departed. Lingah, a seaport of Persia on the Persian gulf 300 miles southeast of Bushire and once a very prosperous port, has fallen on hard times. In former years it was an important center of the pearl trade and a distributing point for European merchandise, but now Bahrain, where the wealthy European and Indian pearl merchants go regularly to make their purchases, has completely pushed Lingah out of the pearl trade.

Which Would You Rather Be? A boarding house keeper's husband. A dressmaker's husband. Or a trained nurse's husband? We answer our own question in a Jim J. Morton. We would rather be the husband of a $1,200 a week vaudeville actress.

INTRODUCING DR. E. FISHER.

Oh, what a shock For this old Doc At two o'clock.

Scarcely able to breathe, and with a heavy pressure on his heart, Hickman Stoddard stumbled into the office of Dr. E. Fisher. Ruben's physician and eminent authority on routine and order.

"Hickman," said Dr. Fisher sternly. "You know my unchangeable rule to the effect that no one shall be treated out of turn, no matter how urgent the case. Why do you suppose the world's efficiency was derived from my name? I am treating Mrs. Glodke for ingrowing wrists, and after that there are seven others still ahead of you. You must take a seat and be patient."

"But, oh, doc, doc," said the man who had efficiency named after him, and Hickman Stoddard subsided into a chair obediently.

An hour and a half later Dr. Fisher came and tapped him on the shoulder with his skinscope.

"Now, Hickman," he said not unkindly. "I just wanted to tell you I seen thieves in your chicken coop. I ran three uncles to tell you," explained Stoddard, who had now regained his breath.

Giving him an efficient kick out into the road, Dr. Fisher seized his hypodermic needle, loaded it, jumped into his Ford, and sped for his farmhouse, but not a chicken remained.

On the Spur of the Moment ROY K. MOULTON

An Unusual Chap. He doesn't care how prices soar. The cost of living is a joke. He never lets out frenzied roar. The same as other common folk. He lets things happen as they will. And takes the good right with the bad.

No hobby can give him a thrill. He's not a crank on any fad. He never speaks an unkind word. About a single living soul. For gossip to him is absurd. His tongue is under strict control. Remarkable of course you say. But this man you will never know; Because, you see, it is this way: They buried him ten years ago.

Uncle Abner. Miss Pansy Tibbits says she has had nine offers of marriage but is waiting until she finds a feller that her mother thinks is good enough for her. But this man she does not find. He is probably won't ask.

There is only one class of people that gossip as much as the women, and they are the men.

I never yet seen a foreign nobleman who didn't look the part.

A model husband is a feller who kin make his wife believe his excuses. Deacon Stubbs has got a mawl which is the stubbornest in our rowdship. When the deacon wants the mawl to stop he hollers "Giddup!" and when he wants the mawl to start he hollers "Whoop!" so the mawl does just what the deacon wants him to do without knowin' it. The deacon uses the same system on his wife.

Widow has become of the old-fashioned business man who used to discount all his bills?

One drawback to being president is a feller has got to meet an awful sight of sordid and uninteresting people.

Since Lem Tubbs held the office of notary public in our village and got a taste of politics, he ain't fit fer work of any kind.

Judge John H. Clarke (top) and Judge Louis D. Brandeis.

The two new members of the U. S. supreme court, Brandeis and Clarke, will hear arguments on important cases for the first time in October.

Heart and Home Problems

By Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson
Letters may be addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in care of The Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I will be sixteen next April. Will I be old enough to do up my hair?

(2) I live in a small town. How soon will I be old enough to go to dances?

(3) I have met a boy whom I like very well. How can I have him like me?

(4) My hair is light, but I think it is getting darker. What can I do to keep it light?

(5) Am I old enough to wear dresses for dressy occasions?

(6) When you are sixteen you will be old enough to do up your hair.

(7) You will not be old enough to go to any college dances until you are eighteen. I think it would be better to start with fraternity dances.

(8) Be pleasant, interesting and as nice as you can, and (heavens) ought to like you. A good personality and character are most important. If you have them, you will attract the boys you like.

(9) Put a teaspoonful of borax in the rinse water when you wash your hair.

(10) Whether you are old enough to wear your dresses to your shoe tops depends upon your size. You can tell yourself if they look well that the shoes are more for street wear than dress.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) What would you do if a boy had gone with several times would plan before your face to go to a neighboring city to see a movie, saying he didn't know who to take? He goes still further to say that he will have to back out.

The other boy had asked a girl to go with him. I don't care about his not asking me, but he said all this before my face.

(2) It is silly of me to think about it all the time? I am fairly good-looking and have several other boy friends. Should I drop this one and go with one of them?

DISCONSOLATE.

(1) If a boy did that to me I would be hurt so deeply that I would never want to see him again. Perhaps he thought you would not go, but he could have asked you at least.

(2) Drop the boy and go with one of your other friends. It is not silly of you to think about it, the matter. Many, many girls have suffered from rudeness of the same kind. Of course you have been hurt and can't forget easily. The boy cannot be sensitive and regretful. He would not have done so crude a thing.

Believe in the girl until something comes up to give you positive reason to doubt her. She is young to be engaged. In four years both you and she will change so much that you may find yourselves utterly unsuited to each other. Don't think of marriage until you are twenty-five and have had some experience.

The differences in your religious and nationalities should be considered seriously, because such differences are very often the cause of great unhappiness and divorce.

Household Hints

SARDINE COCKTAIL.
The following recipe is for a dish suitable for night lunch: Place in a chafin dish or granite saucepan one bottle sardines, one can green peas, two boxes of sandwiches. Heat thoroughly and stir until the sardines are well broken up and mixed with other ingredients. Season to suit taste with a few pinches of cayenne pepper. Serve hot or cold with salad and cold drinks. The above quantity is enough for six or eight persons.

APPLE DESSERT.
Select firm cooking apples, half core, and in each cavity place couple raisins.

Sprinkle over all a little flour, plenty of brown sugar and put a small dot of butter on each apple, also a sprinkle of cinnamon. Put a little water in the pan and bake half an hour, basting once or twice with the syrup in the pan; a few moments before serving put a marshmallow on each piece of apple and return to oven until marshmallows melt and taste.

SEAL CANS AND SAFEGUARD FRUIT.
Most thrifty housewives at this season of the year will feel especially grateful for a guaranteed method of sealing fruit jars, so that not one out of a hundred will spoil. Here is the secret.

While you are boiling your fruits, heat jars in hot water in the usual way, then take the jars covers and heat them on the lid of your stove.

Put a jar full of fruit, place rubber around it and take the hot covers and screw on immediately. The heat of the cover slightly melts the rubber ring and, when cold, forms a permanent seal.

Anything will keep for years, if put up in this way.

SMALL HELPS FOR CANNING SEASON.
When canning fruit, as soon as pared, peaches, pears, apples and quinces should be placed in cold water to keep from turning dark.

Many fruits such as pears, quinces, citrons and watermelon rinds harden when first put into thick syrup. To prevent this they should be boiled first in water or a thin syrup and the rest of the sugar added later.

Peaches, plums, strawberries and apples soften when cooking.

Put a hot syrup over these fruits or sugar them and let stand several hours.

These methods extract the juice and harden the fruit.

CANNING AND PRESERVING.
Sweet Mixed Mustard Pickles—One quart cauliflower, one quart small cucumbers, one quart white beans, one quart sweet corn, one pint shelled lima beans. Steam till partly cooked the beans, onions and cauliflower.

Put in water of one gallon water and one cup salt, pour over all and let stand over night. Dressing: One cup flour, one cup granulated sugar, six tablespoons dry mustard, one dessertspoon turmeric, mix with vinegar to make a smooth paste, then add enough vinegar to make two quarts in all. Cook in double boiler.

First in water, your other pickles and beat through. Then they are ready to bottle.

Indian Relish—Two quarts green tomatoes, one quart onions, one bunch celery, four cucumbers, one head cabbage. Chop fine and mix together with one cup salt and water to cover. Let stand all night. In the morning drain the water from it and add two cups peppers chopped fine, two cups brown sugar, one teaspoon each of ground cloves and cinnamon. Cover with vinegar and boil twenty minutes. Seal while hot.

Cucumber Pickles—One gallon vinegar, one cup salt, one-half cup dry mustard, one large handful mixed spices. Make a cream sauce of 1 1/2 tablespoons butter, one tablespoon flour and a cup of sweet milk. Melt butter, add flour and stir till foamy, then remove from fire. Add the cold milk and cloves, a dash of paprika, teaspoon of sugar and half teaspoon of salt; return to fire and let boil till it is thick. Serve at once.

THE HELPING HAND.

You all fix your limitations, your ambitions draw the line, tell how far you'll make advances, just to what degree you'll shibe, so if you will grow and show us, you must hammer hard and long, you must batter down resistance, you must wade right through and on. You must never be contented, satisfied with what you are, or you'll start a going backward, blur the twinkle of the star that would lead you on and upward—that would light the path success, that would guide you on to glory, and eliminate distress. You have lots of idle moments, heads were made to use, not to tote, brains get stale when you don't air them, let them on ideas float; make some useful use of spare time, that's when character is formed, in your pastimes and your leisure, oppositions can be stormed. That's when you can build foundations on which structures strong may stand, you're your own creator brother, lend yourself a helping hand.

THE RUNAWAY SPIRIT.

Did you ever plan to run away when you were a child? Of course you did if you were a normal child. Probably you had been punished in a way that seemed unfair to you, you were burning with a sense of injustice, you wanted to make the grown-ups sorry, and so you decided to run away.

You pictured yourself going down the street with your clothes wrapped up in a handkerchief, you imagined your mother coming to your room and not finding you. Maybe you planned a note to be pinned on the pin-cushion, a touching note that said perhaps you would come back some day. Perhaps you even went so far as to write that note, or even further, and shook the money out of your pants and packed some of your clothes into a bundle.

You decided not to "Make the World Your Pillow."

And then something always happened. Maybe you told your mother you were going away in the hope that it would make her repent. Or maybe, as you had hoped she would, she came up and found you getting ready and kissed you and you decided not to "make the world your pillow" that night.

Point I now write about the runaway spirit and here my pen has run away with me.

Plans to actually run away belong to childhood but the runaway spirit never leaves us.

Don't You Sometimes Envy Tom Sawyer?

Only it manifests itself in different ways as we grow older. When we went to make people sorry we sometimes vaguely plan a much longer journey. Fortunately the thought that it is a journey from which no man returns, safely deters us. Besides, what is the use of making people sorry if you can't see them?

I never envied any one so much as Tom Sawyer the day

"Thank you, we'll be careful," said Miss Longstreth, gracefully. The rich color had faded in her cheek. "I saw those men watching you from that door. They had such bright black eyes. Is there really danger—here?"

"I think so," was Duane's reply.

Soft swift steps behind him preceded a harsh voice: "Hands up!"

No man was quicker than Duane to recognize the latent in those words! His hands shot up. Miss Ruth uttered a little frightened cry and sank into her chair. Miss Longstreth turned white, her eyes dilated. Both girls were staring at someone behind Duane.

"Turn around!" ordered the harsh voice.

The big, dark stranger, the bearded one who had whispered to his comrade in the bar-room and asked Duane to drink, had him covered with a cocked gun. He strode forward, his eyes gleaming, pressed the gun against him, and with his other hand dove into his inside pocket and tore out his roll of bills. Then he reached low at Duane's hip, felt his gun, and took it. His comrade stood in the door with a gun leveled at two other men, who stood there frightened, speechless.

"Get a move on, Bill," called this fellow, and he took a hasty glance backward. A stamp of hoofs came from outside. Of course the robbers had horses waiting. The one called Bill strode across the room, and with brutal, careless haste began to prod the two men with his weapon and to search them. The robber in the doorway called "Rustle!" and disappeared.

Duane wondered where the innkeeper was, and Colonel Longstreth and the other two passengers. The bearded robber had not moved a muscle. Duane had not moved a muscle. He stood perfectly calm with his arms high. The robber strode back with his bloodshot eyes fastened upon the girls. Miss Longstreth never flinched, but the little girl appeared about to faint.

"Don't yarp, there!" he said, low and hard. He thrust the gun close to Ruth. Duane had a little gun in his pocket. The robber had missed it. And he began to calculate chances. "Any money, jewelry, diamonds?" ordered the ruffian, fiercely.

Miss Ruth collapsed. Then he made at Miss Longstreth. She stood with her hands at her breast. Evidently the robber took this position to mean that she had valuables concealed there. But Duane fancied she had instinctively pressed her hands against a throbbing heart.

"Come out with it!" he said, harshly, reaching for her.

"Don't dare touch me!" she cried, her eyes ablaze. She did not move. She had nerve. She eluded two lunges the man made at her. Then his rough hand caught at her waist, and with one pull ripped it asunder, exposing her beautiful shoulder, white as snow.

She cried out. The prospect of being robbed or even killed had not shaken Miss Longstreth's nerve as had this brutal tearing off of half her waist.

The ruffian was only turned partially away from Duane. The gun was still held dangerously upward close to her. Duane watched only that. Then a blow made him jerk his head. Colonel Longstreth stood in the doorway in a magnificent rage. He had no weapon. Strange how he showed no fear! He bellowed something again.

Duane's shifting glance caught the robber's sudden movement. He seemed stricken. The hand that clutched Miss Longstreth's torn waist loosened its hold. The other hand with its cocked weapon slowly dropped till it pointed to the floor. That was Duane's chance.

Swift as a flash he drew his gun and fired. The robber's gun boomed harmlessly. He fell with blood spurting from his face. Duane rushed out of the room, across the patio, through the bar to the yard. In the gloom stood a saddled horse, probably the one belonging to the fellow he had shot. His comrade had escaped. Returning to the sitting-room, Duane found a condition approaching pandemonium.

The innkeeper was shouting to find out what had happened. Joel, the stage-driver, was trying to quiet the men who had been robbed. The woman, wife of one of the men, had come in, and she had hysterics. The girls were still and white. The robber Bill lay where he had fallen. Like a caged lion Longstreth stalked and roared. There came a quieter moment in which the innkeeper shrilly protested:

"Ma, what're you ravin' about? Nobody's hurt, an' that's lucky. I swear to God I hadn't nothin' to do with them fellers!"

"I ought to kill you anyhow!" replied Longstreth. And his voice now astounded Duane, it was so full of power.

Upon examination Duane found that his bullet had furrowed the robber's temple and had glanced. He was not seriously injured, and already showed signs of returning consciousness.

"Drag him out of here!" ordered Longstreth; and he turned to his daughter.

Before the innkeeper reached the robber Duane had secured the money and gun taken from him; and presently recovered the property of the other men. Joel helped the innkeeper carry the injured man somewhere outside.

Miss Longstreth was sitting white but composed upon the couch, where lay Miss Ruth, who evidently had been carried there by the Colonel. The Colonel, now that he finally remembered his womenfolk, seemed to be gentle and kind. He talked soothingly to Miss Ruth, made light of the adventure, said she must learn to have nerve out here where things happened.

"Can I be of any service?" asked Duane, solicitously.

"Thanks! I guess there's nothing you can do. Talk to those frightened girls while I go see what's to be done with that thick-skulled robber," he replied, and, telling the girls that there was no more danger, he went out.

Miss Longstreth sat with one hand holding her torn waist in place; the other she extended to Duane. He took it awkwardly, and he felt a strange thrill.

"You saved my life," she said, in grave, sweet seriousness.

"No, no," Duane exclaimed. "He might have struck you, hurt you, but no more."

"Did you kill him?" asked Miss Ruth, who lay listening.

"Oh, no. He's not badly hurt."

"I'm very glad he's alive," said Miss Longstreth, shuddering.

"Tell me all about it!" asked Miss Ruth, who was fast recovering.

Hither embarrassed, Duane briefly told the incident from his point of view.

"Cousin," said Miss Longstreth, thoughtfully, "it was fortunate for us that this gentleman happened to be here. Papa scouts—laughs at danger. He seems to think there was no danger. Yet he raved after it came."

"Go with us all the way to Fairdale—please!" asked Miss Ruth, sweetly offering her hand. "I am Ray Herbert. And this is my cousin Ray Longstreth."

"I'm traveling that way," replied Duane, in great confusion. He did not know how to meet the situation.

Colonel Longstreth returned then, and after bidding Duane a good night, which seemed rather curt by contrast to the graciousness of the girls, he led them away.

Before going to bed Duane went outside to take a look at the injured robber and perhaps to ask him a few questions. To Duane's surprise, he was gone, and so was his horse. The innkeeper was dumfounded. He said that he left the fellow on the floor in the barroom.

"Had he come to?" inquired Duane. "Sure. He asked for whiskey."

"Did he say anything else?"

"Not to me. I heard him talkin' to the father of them girls."

"You mean Colonel Longstreth?"

"I reckon. He sure was some riled, wasn't he? Jest as if I was to blame for that two-bit of a hold-up!"

"What did you make of the old gent's rage?" asked Duane, watching the innkeeper. He scratched his head dubiously. He was sincere, and Duane believed in his honesty.

"Wal, I'm doggoned if I know what to make of it. But I reckon he's either crazy or got more nerve than most Texans."

"More nerve, maybe," Duane replied. "Show me a bed now, innkeeper."

was not answerable. There might have been a number of reasons, all to Colonel Longstreth's credit, but Duane could not understand.

Next morning Duane walked up the main street and back again. Just as he arrived some horsemen rode up to the inn and dismounted. And at this juncture the Longstreth party came out. Duane heard Colonel Longstreth utter an exclamation. Then he saw him shake hands with a tall man. Longstreth looked surprised and angry, and he spoke with force; but Duane could not hear what it was he said.

The fellow laughed, yet somehow he struck Duane as sullen, until suddenly he espied Miss Longstreth. Then his face changed, and he removed his sombrero. Duane went closer.

"Floyd, did you come with the teams?" asked Longstreth, sharply.

"Not me. I rode a horse, good and hard," was the reply.

"Hump! I'll have a word to say to you later." Then Longstreth turned to his daughter. "Ray, here's the cousin I've told you about. You used to play with him ten years ago—Floyd Lawson. Floyd, my daughter—and my niece, Ruth Herbert."

Duane always scrutinized everyone he met, and now with a dangerous game to play, with a consciousness of Longstreth's unusual and significant personality, he bent a keen and searching glance upon this Floyd Lawson.

He was under thirty, yet gray at his temples—dark, smooth-shaven, with lines left by wildness, dissipation, shadows under dark eyes, a mouth strong and bitter, and a square chin—a reckless, careless, handsome, sinister face strangely losing the hardness when he smiled. The grace of a gentleman clung round him, seemed like an echo in his mellow voice. Duane doubted not that he, like many a young man, had drifted out to the frontier, where rough and wild life had wrought sternly but had not quite effaced the mark of good family.

"More Nerve, Maybe."

"What's the matter?" asked the young doctor of a patient who seemed extremely pessimistic regarding his chances.

"Oh, I don't know, doctor; but I feel that I shall never pull through here!"

"Nonsense, my boy—nonsense! Why, your case is absolutely the same as an illness I had years ago. Yet look at me—strong and hearty as ever!"

Colonel Longstreth apparently did not share the pleasure of his daughter and his niece in the advent of this cousin. Something binged on this meeting. Duane grew intensely curious, but, as the stage appeared ready for the journey, he had no further opportunity to gratify it.

Keeps Her Children In Perfect Health

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin the Family Laxative for Many Years.

Mrs. Aug. Doellefeld of Carlyle, Ill., recently wrote to Dr. Caldwell, at Monticello, Ill., that she has used Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin in her home for a number of years, and would not be without it, as with it she has been able to keep her four children in perfect health.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin that acts on the bowels in an easy natural way, and regulates the action of this most important function. Nearly all the sickness to which children are subject is traceable to bowel inaction, and a mild, dependable laxative, such as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin should have a place in every family medicine chest. It is pleasant to the taste and children like it and take it readily, while it is equally effective for adults.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is sold in drug stores everywhere for fifty cents a bottle. To avoid imitations and ineffective substitutes be sure you get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. See that a facsimile of Dr. Caldwell's signature and his portrait appear on the yellow carton in which the bottle is packed. A trial bottle, free of charge, can be obtained by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 455 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois.

Mrs. Aug. Doellefeld

"Yes," replied the patient, "but then I expect you had a good doctor!"

A man in khaki, just back from France, went into a restaurant. After glancing over the bill of fare he looked around the room for a waiter.

"Yes, sir," said the waiter, sliding over in response to his call, with a glass of water and a napkin.

"Tell me, waiter," remarked the soldier, "have you got frogs' legs?"

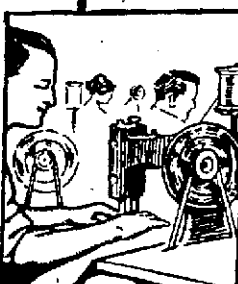

"No, sir," was the rather unexpended answer. "It is rheumatism that makes me walk like this."

On the test paper in answer to the question, "What do we mean by the plural of a word?" Lucy had written: "By the plural of a word we mean the same thing, only more of it."

Greatest Love Story in World

By Rev. Wm. Wallace Ketchum
Director of the Practical Work Course,
Moody Bible Institute of Chicago

TEXT—For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten son that whosoever believeth in him should not perish but have everlasting life.—John 3:16.

What would you think if God should write across the sky in flaming letters of fire the statement of his love for the world, would you believe it? Well, he has not written it there, but he has written it large in the Bible which is the story of his love. Of course the Bible tells us other things; but above all, it tells us this, and nowhere better than in John 3:16.

Love's Message.
There we read the statement of his love, "for God so loved the world." Note the sweep of the world world; not in this place, does it mean the universe; but mankind, and by it all are included. Nowhere is there such a love as this, a love which loves the unlovable. We love those who have that in them which draws our love. God, on the other hand, "commandeth his love toward us in that while we were yet sinners Christ died for us."

Note the intensity of the statement of his love, "so loved the world." It's a little word, but what an emphatic one. It is a word of degree, expressing the measure of his love and should not be hastily passed over. "So" puts the warmth into the statement; "so" expresses the fire that burns in love, and to you and to me, who are unworthy of God's love, it has a wealth of meaning.

Love's Sacrifice.
But more to us than this statement, is the expression of God's love, "that he gave his only begotten son." Love is not measured by words, but by deeds. It is not what one says, but what one does that proves his love. Calvary is the great expression of the love of God for the world. There God was in Christ, reconciling the world to himself; there God broke his heart for a lost world. What matchless love! Angels and cherubim stand before it amazed, while a world wrecked by sin is stolidly indifferent. What a message Calvary voices! No condemnation, save for him who deserved it; no upbraiding of a sinful world; just the expression of God's love in an act of grace which cared for the sin of the world.

Love's Purpose.
We have here as well the purpose of God's love, "that whosoever believeth in him should not perish but have everlasting life." The statement and the expression of God's love find their consummation in the purpose, the salvation of the lost. But the salvation of the lost is not universal, as we shall see, for it is "whosoever believeth in him" that shall not perish but have everlasting life. "That word, 'whosoever,' makes the matter personal. It tells us that God, having done his part, now leaves it to us to do ours. He does not force us; he says, 'whosoever believeth shall not perish.' While the word 'whosoever' individualizes salvation, it makes a wide open door for all. For who is shut out, since 'whosoever' will may come? It is a matter, then, of our own choice.

Love's Purpose Realized.
How easily the purpose of God is realized, so far as man is concerned, if only we choose to come. No difficult task is put before us, no impossible requirement, simply believing in Christ. And this means more than having an historical faith or a general religious belief; it means committing one's life to him; trusting him and him only to save.

Why not, as you read this, trust Christ to save you? It is so easy to rely upon him. An old lady sat in a railroad train bound for Bay City, Mich. She had not traveled much and was afraid she was not on the right train. Nervously she arose and spoke to the woman in front of her: "Is this the train for Bay City, Michigan?" "Yes, madam," the woman replied. But the old lady was not satisfied. Perhaps the woman was mistaken. Women sometimes are mistaken. A man was reading his paper across the aisle. "Pardon me," she said, addressing the gentleman, "is this the train for Bay City, Michigan?" "Yes, madam," he replied without looking up. She returned to her seat still not certain, for men sometimes are mistaken. Just then, down the aisle came the conductor of the train. "It will know," the old lady said to herself, "I'll ask him." "Pardon me, sir, is this the train for Bay City, Michigan?" "Yes, madam," the conductor replied, as he passed on. She heaved a sigh of relief, as she sank back into her seat, and putting her face against the window pane fell fast asleep. What had she done? Taken the conductor at his word. He was a man with authority and she trusted him. Christ speaks to you, my friend, he is one with authority and knows whereof he speaks. Why not, just as the old lady trusted the conductor, sweetly trust him and have life and peace?

Life's Supreme Happiness.
The supreme happiness of life is the conviction of being loved for yourself, and not correctly, being loved in spite of yourself.—Hugo.

A PLOT THAT FAILED.

The plot of Antonia was part of a great structure which probably extended the entire length of the northern side of the temple court. It was a fortress, barracks, and palace all in one. Its size is indicated by the fact that it could shelter an entire regiment at once. Its splendor is assured by the fame of its builder, Herod the Great, always built handsomely. But he would want this building especially to be sumptuous. He intended it should bear the name of Mark Antony. Its very position also demanded that it should be superb. It was the sign of Roman power, as the temple next to which it stood was the noble memorial of the Hebrew faith. A significant trace of this famous structure remains to our day, in the deep trench to the north. It is popularly known as the Pool of Bethesda, but is probably the castle moat. The chief interest and glory of this heathen fortress is that it sheltered the Christian apostle. Under its hospitable roof, safe from the raging of the mob, Paul received gracious and comforting assurances of security in his journey to the goal of his arduous missionary spirit, the city by the Tiber.

When the apostle in prison was wrapt in the consolation of a heavenly vision such as stayed him in Corinth and afterward in shipwreck, his malignant enemies were far from idle. It was not merely hatred that inflamed them. It was the instinct of self-preservation. A more significant factor in the success of the foremost advocate of the new faith could not have been given. There was not room enough in Judea for both Paul and the Established Church. One or the other must die. No question but some of the conspirators thought they were doing God service. They believed in the divine right of assassination. They must away with the man who taught apostasy from Moses, and the bold genius whose dangerous independence treated Moslemism and its essential covenant as a thing of the past. The conspirators seem to have agreed with avidity to the concoction of a lie for the facilitation of murder. In his extremity Paul appears not to have had the active sympathy of the Christian Church in Jerusalem. When Peter was in prison prayer was made for him by the Church. We read of nothing of the kind in the case of Paul. The signs are evident that he was looked upon with coldness if not hostility. There may have been Christians who at that time were thinking it would even be better if the controversy between Gentile Christian and Jew Christian were ended by Paul's death. But what Christian faith failed in, natural affection accomplished. Paul's sister and nephew were the means of his rescue from the deadly plot of the oath-bound Sicarii. At no point is Luke's narrative more effective. There are the fewest possible strokes, but every one of them tells. It is like the white and black picture now so popular. Every word counts; much is suggested. All the parties to the affair stand in relief—conspirators, priests and elders, chief captain, Paul's nephew, Paul's self, and his guard to Caesarea.

How futile the conspiracy! The oath-bound assassins were all unconsciously speeding Paul on his way to the throne of his widest honor and power. Their plan was laid with consummate villainy. The dignity and sanctity of the priesthood and the Sanhedrin, highest court of the nation, lent itself to the nefarious plot. A most plausible request was made of the Roman commander, that he would allow the court to further examine the prisoner. En route the guard was to be overpowered and the prisoner slain. Humanly speaking by most unexpected means, knowledge of the plot was conveyed to the chief captain, who with true Roman promptitude and skill put Paul beyond reach of his enemies.

THE TEACHER'S LANTERN.

The inveterate and historical tenaciousness of life in an ecclesiastical establishment has striking illustration in this instance. It is not of their nature to admit themselves to be transitory. They are not willing to diminish that others may increase. The synagogue would not give place to the Church. That there are monetary considerations unfessed but none the less real may be readily believed. It is still a question of "loaves and fishes," although the admission may not be quite so frank as that of the Ephesian silversmiths. "By this craft we get our wealth." This is not, however, to deny the absolute and disinterested devotion of many who are attached to ecclesiastical establishments of every description.

The disturbed and unsafe condition of Palestine at the time can hardly be exaggerated. A spark would be enough to set it on fire. Human blood had already flowed with that of the beasts designed for sacrifice—a high priest and many worshippers had been slain. Ventidius and the Egyptian zealot had played their tragic parts. Under all the conditions the prompt and tactful course of Claudius Lysias is to be admired. He was justified in his belief that his garrison as parting with his prisoner safe could do to give. Forty conspirators were thirty-seven too many! The odiousness of Paul is evidence by the number who were willing to stake their lives for his destruction; but the very size of the body made the keeping of the secret impossible, and so defeated the plot. A natural affection shines like a jewel in the narrative. Paul's sister loved her brother. There is no evil in the narrative. The prediction that he was a Christian, the prediction that he was a Christian is improbable. He would have heard of the plot. It is likely she took the initiative for the rescue of her brother, for in the term used her son was yet an immature boy.

CONSECRATION OF SCHOOL LIFE.

After the "Zone of death" was quiet, the Red Cross squad had found the young officer with his face to the foe and his right arm outstretched as if to encourage his men in that fatal charge. When a letter from the trenches brought the word, the headmaster of the school from which the youth had so lately graduated said, "If I had been asked to name one of all our number to represent us in the presence of heaven, I could not possibly have chosen one in every respect more fit in view of his guileless speech, his noble spirit, his intelligent devotion to the public good, the sincerity and kindness of his bearing toward all without reference to rank or station, his abounding cheerfulness under conditions trying in the extreme. He is our peerless delegate to the halls of heaven." * * * The school in every case is a little world in itself. Its total efficiency is augmented by the betterment of the individual. And not the least means of this advance is the inspirational power of a good example.

TESTING EYE STRAIN FROM PRINT PAPER

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., Sept. 28.—When the forest products laboratory at Madison, Wis., published the results of its investigation on the use of tamarack, jack pine, and other inferior woods as substitutes for spruce in the manufacture of news print paper, there was raised the question as to whether or not the darker color of some of these papers would make reading difficult. In order to determine this point an exhaustive study was made in cooperation with the department of psychology at the University of Wisconsin to determine the effect of color of paper upon eye fatigue.

Some original and effective methods of testing eye fatigue were developed. The studies showed that practically no difference in eye fatigue was produced in reading from the darker newspaper papers as compared with that from the white spruce, so there is no valid reason why the darker colored papers should not be used.

Healthy Skin DEPENDS ON KIDNEYS.

The skin and the intestines, which work together with the kidneys to throw out the poisons of the body, do a part of the work, but a clean body and a healthy one depends on the kidneys. If the kidneys are clogged with toxic poisons you suffer from stiffness in the knees in the morning on arising, your joints seem "rusty," you may have rheumatic pains, pain in the back, stiff neck, headaches, sometimes swollen feet, or neuralgic pains—all due to the uric acid or toxic poisons in the blood. This is the time to go to the nearest drug store and simply obtain a 50c package of "Anuric," the discovery of Dr. Pierce of Buffalo, N. Y. Then drink a cup of hot water before meals, with an "Anuric Tablet," and notice the gratifying results.

The fable of the Young Man who would not Dress Up

ONCE upon a time there was a Young Man who was busy Gathering, Sorting and Pigeonholing Noble Thoughts, that he didn't have time to bother with Trivial Things like Clothes—any Old vintage of '76 Suits was all right for him; and besides, didn't some Patriarch say, that Clothes dont make a Man—back there in the Age when a Sheet was Daytime Dress Up.

One day this Boy Encyclopedia decided to take his Twin-Six Intellect to some Captain of Industry, thereby giving Big Business its first real Chance.

He tried to get an Audience with all the Big Guns in the Seven Figures. The Chiefs lamped him for a Ne'er-Do-Well looking for a Hand-out, and ordered the Office Boys to give him the Gate.

The Young Man couldn't get near enough to a Higher Up to explain that he had been so busy filling his Mind that he didn't have Time to decently cover his body.

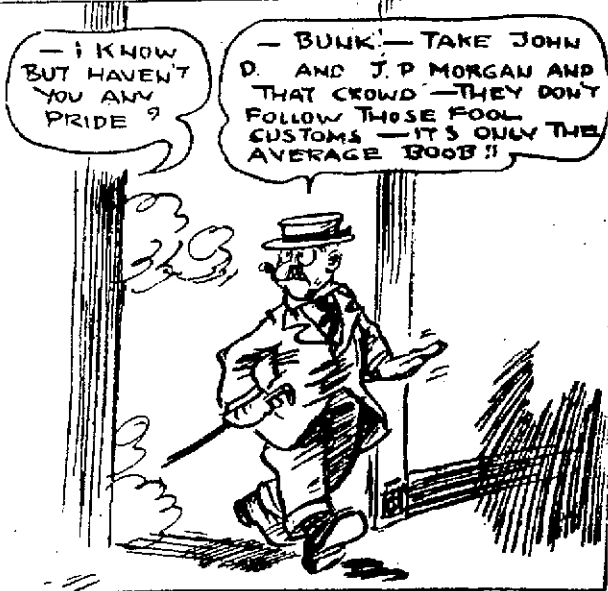

The Moral of this Fable is:—Dress-up; Clothes make all of a Man except his Hands and Face during Business Hours.

We've told you this little fable to get your mind on new clothes and the fact that the Fall "Dress Up" begins tomorrow. What do you need—a suit, overcoat or both,

BIG NINE ELEVENS LAY OFF TOMORROW; ARMY-NAVY START

Indiana Only Conference Team to Play—Big Three of East Swing Into Action.

TOMORROW'S FOOTBALL SCHEDULE.

East. Rhode Island at Providence. Bucknell vs. Albright at Lewisburg. Colgate vs. Susquehanna at Hamilton. Dartmouth vs. Boston college at Hanover. Cornell vs. Oberlin at Ithaca. Harvard vs. Bates at Cambridge. Lafayette vs. Fordham at Kingston. Princeton vs. Holy Cross at Princeton. Rutgers vs. Villanova at New Brunswick. Army Navy Lehigh Valley at West Point. Navy vs. Dickinson at Annapolis. Maine vs. New Hampshire at Orono. Pennsylvania vs. West Virginia at Philadelphia. University of Pittsburgh vs. University of Buffalo at Pittsburgh. Yale vs. Carnegie Institute at New Haven.

West. Haskell vs. Bethany at Lawrence. Indiana vs. DePauw at Bloomington. Kansas Aggies vs. Baker at Manhattan. Kansas Wesleyan vs. Fairmount at Salina. Michigan vs. Olivet at East Lansing. California vs. Olympic club at Berkeley. Notre Dame vs. Case at South Bend.

Although the football season for most of the big colleges is now a week old the west has not yet gone into action for any of the important games. In the "big nine" tomorrow Indiana only has a game which appears to be of importance. Chicago, Illinois, Nebraska, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, and Iowa are all idle. In the east the stronger teams are gradually drawing toward the harder part of their schedules. The "big three" Harvard, Yale and Princeton, all have games of more or less importance scheduled for tomorrow. A New Haven Yale will take on Carnegie Institute in what should prove to be little more than a hard practice scrimmage at Cambridge. Bridge Harvard will meet Bates. This game should serve to bring out some of Harvard's best football, for the Bates warriors undoubtedly will offer a strong front. Princeton will meet more opposition than any of its chief rivals when it goes against Holy Cross. Princeton probably will be forced to use at least some of its best players to triumph by a decided score. Both Army and Navy teams will be in action tomorrow on their home fields. The middies are scheduled with Dickinson and the Army will take on Lebanon Valley. In the past Dickinson has always received a hard proposition for the Yale. And this game probably will prove no exception to the rule. Army coaches are expecting only a hard practice scrimmage at the hands of Lebanon Valley.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 29.—Howard Ehmke, the tall twirler which the Detroit Americans recently obtained from the Syracuse club of the New York circuit, failed to make such a king of the minor organization. He pitched twelve Kalamazoo victories this season. Even Grover Cleveland Alexander, who once starred in the New York circuit, failed to make a record. Ehmke blanked every club in the league at least once.

GIANTS' DOUBLE WIN MAKES IT 25 IN ROW

Boston Eliminated From National Race Yesterday When New York Further Boosts Record.

The runaway Giants increased their string of straight victories to twenty-five yesterday, shutting out Boston in both games of a double. The victory practically eliminating that club from the pennant race. The scores were 2 to 0 and 6 to 0. Tesreau had the better of Rudolph in a pitchers' bat- tle in the first game, while in the second Schupp was never in danger. He allowed only one hit, a single by Kon- etchy in the seventh. Blackburn, who walked in the sixth, was the only other man to reach base for him. Neither advanced beyond first.

Kauf drove out a home run off Nehf with the bases filled in the third inning of the second game, putting it on ice. A long homer by Robert- son in the fourth inning, decided the result in that contest. Robertson scored again in the sixth when, after forcing Herzog, he went to third on Zimmerman's single and came in while Zimmerman was stealing sec- ond.

Another Ghost of a Chance.

The Red Sox lost half a game in the pennant lead today, New York de- feating them 4 to 2 in another ten- ning battle. Boston's sacrifice fly and scored on Gainer's sacrifice fly. New York scored one in the fifth on Pipp's double and Godeon's single. They tied it up in the eighth on a double by Walters and singles by Borridge and Mays. This same com- bination was responsible for New York's two runs in the tenth. Wal- ters opened with a double, getting third on center. Mays pitched the ball and scoring on a single by Mogridge. Mays then tripled to right, scoring Mogridge.

HIGH SCHOOL MEETS DELANVAN SATURDAY

Play Deaf Mutes at Delavan in First Gridiron Clash of Season.—To Make Trip by Motor.

The high school football squad will play their first game this season, Sat- urday, against the Delavan state school at Delavan. The team will leave Janesville Saturday morning about eleven o'clock and will motor through. It is hoped that all students who can attend will do so, and give the team as much support as possible.

Last night the team had a practice game with the Alumni and easily triumphed the later. The team displayed rare form for so early a season and have inspired a confidence in themselves and in the coaches that will make them fighters. In the scrimmage yesterday, Kimball and Ewing playing the guard positions showed up particularly well. Davison and Richards at the ends are fast and are good on the defense.

One blow to the team is the loss of Clark, the star halfback and line- backer, who were forced to leave the squad on account of scholastic diffi- culties. The loss was felt keenly, but Coach Keck feels that their place can be filled with other material which has come to light since the opening of the season.

About twenty men will make the trip tomorrow. Coach Keck has as yet picked the exact lineup which will start the game, but has chosen those whom he will play. Davey and Culien at center; Ewing, Finley, O'Brien and Drew in the backfield.

"While I realize that Delavan has a strong team, I think that we will win tomorrow," said Coach Keck, "after watching the boys yesterday I know they have the right sort of a fighting spirit. A victory in the first game will mean a lot, and I want the support of the school at that game."

Optimistic Thought.

No men can be bad to those whose designs are good.

PHILLIES WIN FIRST IN CRUCIAL SERIES

Brooklyn, League Leaders, Trounced 8 to 4—Rest of Games Will Settle League Championship.

Philadelphia, behind the strong pitching of Alexander, inflicted a smashing defeat on Brooklyn yester- day, 8 to 4, in the first game of a series which is expected to determine the pennant winner in the National league. The victory brought the Phillies within less than half a game of Brooklyn, which has spent two years now trying to teach our boys.

George Sisler is indeed a genius. The national game has probably never known his equal for versatility. At least in modern times. All season he has played first base and the outfield for the St. Louis Browns. Most of the time he has been stationed at the initial sack. So well has he played there that he is generally rat- ed as the best first baseman in the American league. He is Chase's only rival. Back in his college days at Michigan Sisler was a pitcher. He pitched several games last year for St. Louis. He pitched one this year, back in the springtime. Recently he stepped on the mound against the Senators, shut them out, and van- quished no less a personage than Wal- ter Johnson in a pitching duel. This is a feat that stands out as the high- light of the season. It is beyond the batting of Speaker, the pitching of Plank and the rejuvenation of Chase. Without having done any pitching for months, and having played first base steadily, to step on the mound, shut out a ball club like the Senators and beat Walter Johnson, is a miracle feat if ever there was one.

The San Francisco club got Pitcher Rudy Kallio, late of Great Falls, through his working arrangement with the Detroit club. If he shows well with the Seals he may yet be called in by Detroit. Eric Erickson also re- mains with the Seals, the Detroit club having canceled its recall under the new rule which permits release at any time of players recalled under option.

The Portland club, which will try out a number of recruits this month, thinks it has one real prize in Lund- berg, a youngster picked up from the lot of Oakland. Lundberg pitched against Speed Martin in the winter league district last winter and some say he looked better than the Oak- land star who goes to the Chicago White Sox. He is 20 years of age and is a right-hander.

Best Defense, Offense Jennings and Yost Agree.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 29.—Hugh Jennings, manager of the Detroit baseball club is a great football enthusiast. Fielding H. Yost, coach of the Michigan football squad, a great baseball fan. Each looks respects the prowess and opinions of the other and both are agreed that the first sentence in the baseball book should be first in the football book. The first sentence is "The best defense is a strong offense." Jennings often has termed Cobb, Crawford and Veach, the best pitching staff in the league.

YOST STARTS 16TH YEAR AS COACH OF WOLVERINES.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 29.—Coach Yost, of the Michigan football squad, began his sixteenth season here, when he took charge of the team on Sept. 18. He has one consolation; this 1916 eleven cannot be much poorer than his weakening squad of a year ago.

More troubles for the Pacific Coast league and another suit threatened. Ed Maier declares that if the league tries to throw him out will bring suit of some kind. Maier's friends in Los Angeles are predicting that he yet will dictate to the league how it shall be run and who shall run it, and that he will get President Bauman's head before he is through. All of which promises interesting doings during the winter months.

ADVERTISING AN AUCTION

In The Gazette is a sure guarantee of success.

Read this letter from Mr. Plumb of Avalon. Note what he thinks of Gazette advertising. If it paid him it will pay others.

The Gazette, Janesville, Wis.

Dear Sirs:—

As a result of the advertising I did in the Gazette for my auction, I had one of the most successful sales ever conducted in this vicinity. I had a big crowd, many of the buyers coming from various parts of the county. If I was to hold another sale I would not use a single bill, but I would spend that money in the Gazette. It would be better invested.

The sale totaled $3,500 and everything brought a good price. Sixty-one sheep averaged $11.50. Horses went as high as $200. Four calves less than a year old averaged $39.
The auctioneer, Col. Dooley, did mighty good work and was pleased with the attendance.

I would advise anyone contemplating a sale to advertise it well in the Gazette. It will then be a success.

Yours truly,

JAMES PLUMB.

MILWAUKEE AGITATES
TO MOVE CLOCKS AHEAD.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 29.—Agitation for moving Milwaukee clocks ahead one hour was being made here today, many business men declaring that it will give them one hour more daylight, and the "more daylight the bigger the sales" they figure.

President John Klingler, of the M.
& W. association, has appointed a committee to make an investigation as to the feasibility of the plan. If the committee finds that more daylight is desirable and practical, it will seek the co-operation of the industrial, commercial and transportation interest of the city, as well as the approval of the city administration, toward inaugurating the change next

CHARGE PRESIDENT WITH BEFUDDLING EIGHT HOUR ISSUE

New York, Sept. 27.—President Wilson's speech to business men, in which he sought to defend his course regarding the railroad controversy, proves conclusively that Mr. Wilson believes the public to be uneducated and that he can be thus successfully deceived. It is a recent discussion of the railroad controversy consisted of a defense of the eight-hour day. And the eight-hour day was not involved in the controversy. Eight hours was chosen merely as a measure of wages. That is all. Mr. Wilson says the employees demanded time and a half wages for day in order to penalize the railway for their demand to work six, seven hours a day at the same rate of pay. They demanded ten hours pay for eight hours work and a 12 1/2 mile speed limit. The man who worked sixteen hours and made 200 miles in that time would receive the same pay for each of the sixteen hours. The man now working 64 hours a week would, under their demand, receive $4 for eight hours work, or 50 cents an hour, and if he was working sixteen hours he would receive 50 cents an hour for each additional hour, and no more. His pay for sixteen hours would be $8. This demand for time and a half for each hour for the first sixteen hours when they were compelled to make less than 1 1/2 miles average speed. Mr. Wilson knows the facts. He also knows that the railway pay schedule is complicated and he believes he can blindfold the public by mere insinuations that the brotherhood demand was for an eight-hour day, when it was nothing of the kind. He declared that "I don't regard the question of the principle of the eight-hour day as arbitrary." He "thinks" that business in the "spring" had "nothing to do with the case."

February, 1914. In February, 1914, in Cincinnati, there were 22,851 experienced machinists out of employment; there were 11,200 merchants and helpers out of employment. Soup houses were established. Of the eighty-six manufacturing industries there were eight working 60 per cent of full time, thirty-eight were working 54 per cent of full time, ten were working 33 per cent of full time, and thirty of the eighty-six were closed down entirely. In New York City 300,000 were out of employment and in New York City the hand the question was how to relieve these conditions. From Governor Hughes' speech at Madison, Ind., Mr. Wilson pointed out that the effect of the Underwood tariff law would do well to recall the conditions which prevailed under that law and before the European war broke out.

War and the Farmer.—Does the farmer profit by the European war? Has it affected his price or is it not? The manufacturers who have greatly prospered thereby? Of course, everyone knows that when times are good and the factories are running full time and paying good wages, there is a good demand for the products of the farm, but few realize the amount of foodstuffs which it takes to feed the great European armies and those in industrial armies whose entire time is devoted in Europe to manufacturing munitions of war. The figures throw some light on the question. During the first two years of the war the United States sold the belligerents powder, cartridges, explosives and firearms to the value of $24,000,000. The sold them foodstuffs to the value of $1,523,000,000, or nearly four times as much, measured in value, as of actual munitions of war. Can any intelligent man fail to appreciate what this has meant to the farmers of this country? Why the value of exports of foodstuffs was sufficient to pay a net profit of $20 a year on a 100-acre farm. When the war ends the 30,000,000 men now fighting and making ammunition in Europe will return to their normal pursuits. Now there are only consumers of foodstuffs. Then a large percentage of them will become producers, as well. The farmer is, therefore, as vitally interested in industrial preparedness as the mechanic and the artisan.

25,000 College Men.—Twenty-five thousand college men have promptly responded to the single invitation sent them to support and work for Governor Hughes, joining the Hughes National College League. Four years ago Woodrow Wilson enjoyed the support of a great number of college men, but the indications are that they have become thoroughly disgusted with their choice. They are joining the Hughes National College League in droves. College men in every walk in life with that they are not only glad but anxious to work for Mr. Hughes, and National Campaign Manager George B. Conpton is receiving enrollments at the rate of 1,000 a day.

The Small Business Man.—It has been the boast of the Wilson administration that it was especially the friend of the small business man. The fact is that no administration can properly conserve or promote the interests of one class of business men as opposed to another class. If the government is just and fair it will help the business man and the farmer equally and it will prevent the small businessman and the big businessman from doing that which is wrong and making advantage of any class in the community. That the "small business man" does not appreciate the help which the Wilson administration pretends to have given him is abundantly illustrated in Maine. There is probably no state where there are so many small businessmen in proportion to population. And Maine made a clean sweep and not only elected a republican governor but will not send a single democrat to represent it in either the national senate or house.

$4,000,000,000 Congress.—At the rate set by the first session of the present congress, this will amount to a $4,000,000,000 congress. At the coming session it will be necessary to make appropriations for the next fiscal year, and as $2,000,000,000 have already been appropriated for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1917, with the reckless extravagance and want of system which the democratic majorities have displayed, it is a reasonable expectation that they will appropriate a like sum for the succeeding year. The total cost of the civil war was approximately $4,000,000,000, which gives a basis for gauging the extent of democratic extravagance. The appropriations of the session just ended exceed the largest appropriations of a republican congress by $313,952,927. As less than half of this sum was expended for preparedness, the remainder must be charged solely to democratic inefficiency and wastefulness.

Rainbow Chasing.—Nothing but the most fantastic rainbow chasing enables the democratic managers to figure out a victory for their candidate. This is shown by the declaration of the New York Times that the republicans of the Wilson administration, that the republicans and democrats both concede Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and New York to be doubtful states. The democrats doubtless concede these states to be doubtful, but the republicans do not concede one of them to be so. They are perfectly confident that Mr. Hughes will carry every one of them and they look for a 200,000 majority in Illinois.

TWO PUBLIC UTILITY PLANTS IN FIGHT

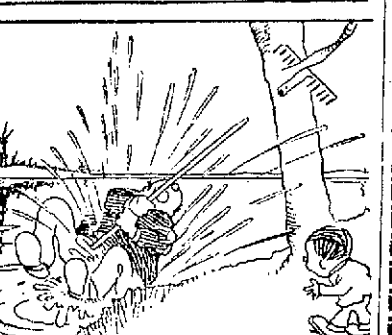

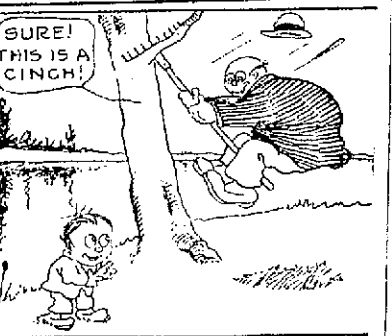

Madison, Wis., Sept. 28.—The railroad commission here yesterday of the usual spectacle here yesterday of two municipal light plants fighting each other with two private electric companies as interested spectators. This situation developed at the hearing before Commissioner Trumbower in the case of the Village of Mazomanie vs. the Village of Black Earth. The complaining village alleged in its petition that it was not receiving a proper rental for use of its transmission line and asked the commission to fix a rate. From the testimony it appeared that some time ago the village of Mazomanie built a transmission line, eleven miles long from Prairie du Sac. It made a contract to furnish not more than half the current to the village of Black Earth, three miles away. After the line was built and the contract in operation, it was alleged that the Mazomanie plant began to fall behind in the matter of finances and the taxpayers called on it to help out. It was claimed that the line cost more than was expected and that the contract with Black Earth was made on an estimate and not on actual facts. It was also brought out that after it had constructed its line from Mazomanie to Black Earth the latter village traced to sell current to two private companies at Mt. Horeb and Cross Plains, and witnesses for Mazomanie asserted that these companies netted Black Earth about as much as the total rental paid by Black Earth for the eleven mile line. At any rate the commission is now asked to make a complete investigation of the whole matter and arrive at some fair determination. A. G. Bills, A. V. Grunder and Mayor C. H. Buiz appeared for Mazomanie and Charles Matzko, H. Herriman and Alfred Mickelson for Black Earth.

Mexico's Capital City.
Mexico City, the capital of Mexico, is a town of some historic interest, while its cathedral is regarded as the handsomest church on the American continent. The foundation stone of this edifice was laid in 1593 on the site of a former heathen temple. The national museum is filled with treasures of Aztec civilization, and various memorials of the hapless Maximilian and the beautiful Carlotta lend a tuster to this attractive city. The climate is good and the population about 471,000, many of whom are Americans and Germans.

PERHAPS THEY'LL HAVE TO REDUCE LIKE BARBERS DID IN JANSVILLE.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
La Crosse, Wis., Sept. 29.—Haircuts are a luxury in La Crosse nowadays. Prices jumped ten cents to thirty-five cents a cut here recently as a result of an agreement among the barbers. All but a few are enforcing the new price. High cost of living, advanced prices for material, and highest wages of barbers, are given as their reasons for the raise.

TO LIVE LONG!

A recipe given by a famous physician for long life was: "Keep the kidneys in good order! Try to eliminate thru the skin and intestines the poisons that otherwise clog the kidneys. Avoid eating meat as much as possible; avoid too much salt, alcohol, tea. Try a milk and vegetable diet. Drink plenty of water, and exercise so you sweat—the skin helps to eliminate the toxic poisons and uric acid." For those past middle life, for those easily recognized symptoms of inflammation, as backache, scalding "water," or if uric acid in the blood has caused rheumatism, "rusty" joints, stiffness, get "Anuria" at the drug store. This is a wonderful eliminator of uric acid and was discovered by Dr. Pierce of Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y. If your druggist does not keep it send 50 cents to Dr. Pierce for trial package and you will know that it is thirty-seven times more potent than lithin and that it dissolves uric acid as hot water does sugar.—Advertisement.
